How many men are there in Milwankee wh are in the habit of religiously stuying away from the polls on election days, because, say they, the "don't like politics" - they "don't want to b mixed up in these matters"—not they. And ho many of such men are there, now, who have n reflected upon the importance of the present crisand who are yet saying, that they "are not so that they shall vote at all"—even this time? Will such as have heretofore ranked themselv in this "no-party" class reflect one moment up-

THE COMMERCIAL'S SYMPATHES FOR

The Commercial affects the liveliest indigtion at our article of Frielay, suggesting that the Lawyers, having bangod off the Legislative no as nations for this city on the Democratic tiel 4, had got rather more than their share of the of sters. This idea the Commercial entirely repul-diates, evidently thinking that the Lawyers lave a right to "aspire" to such positions, while the Mechanics have not. We never doubted that the Commercial's sympathies all ran in that line, and are glad to see that it is frank enough for a reto avow them. The Lawyers, as a class, are as outstelly entitled to a fair share of the horeast and emoluments of public office. But this giving them all, is, we respectfully submit, rather "1 inming the thing into the ground."

About 1 o'clock A. M. of the 24th, ordered cargo between decks to be thrown overboard (about 1500 bibls flour,) but the gale increasing, the beat continued to labor heavily. About 113 o'clock, in consequence of the fires being extinguished, the engine coised to work and the boat was reidered entirely unmanageable, having no sail but the jib, she continued to drift toward the Canada shore.—About 12 o'clock at noon of the 24th, in about 5 fathous water, and eight miles above Grand lifeer, C.W., let go the big anchor and run out 35 fathom chain, then let go small methor; they did not check her, and she drifted on to a rocky point, where she how lies. About 5 o'clock P. M., got down small boat and landed part of the crew; the balance remained on board notifi the morning of the 25th inst, when they came off. The boat is now a wreck at the place above named.

A Sketch of Parodl.

The young and gifted Signorian Parodi was born in Genea, in 1827, of pacents in limited circ constances, who are now supported by the flial piety of their talented daughter. Her earliest vonts displayed a remarkable taste and talent of music, which soon veneined the cars of Mad. Pasta, who was then enjoying the fraits of her career, as the Queen of Song at her villa, on Lake Como. Under her advice, Parodi commenced her musical studies, and a year or two afterwards, only. Pasta exclaimed to the young aspirant, "I shall live to see you the nabuet singer in Europe." Her first appearance before the public was at Berguno, where the success of the young debatante was most extraordinary. She soon appeared at Verona, Palermo, Plorwee, &c., and closed the season at "The Europal city" where she won new land of from the Roman citizens.

A sympathiser with the troubles of her native Haly, then struggling from the dom from Austrian and Keapedian oppae-sim, Paradi, disgusted with the uniforms of despotism, left, her country for the continent. Arriving in London, she appeared in the operate of Norma, Lacretia Roma, Semiramide, etc., in rapid succession, and disputed the palm with the Swedish Nightingale, on the sector of her greatest triumples. Paradi was then, 1849, only in her 23d year, and stood upon the highest pinnacle of musical fame. No said den an elevation would have turned the heads of bamy a singer, but her natural simplicity and good somes, sixed her from the fire which too often attends andden and surprising success.

After these achie ements her strong desire to visit the land of freedom in the West, induced her to embark for the United Statos, where she arrived early in the fall of 1850. Her appearance at the Astor Place Opem was greeted with the most enthusistic and unbounded applement and her performances were of the most triumplant character. She interwards visited the principal cities of the Union, in the performance of a round of her operatic characters, and in Roston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, St. Louis, &c., &c., was the subject of the most threefing and complimentary notices from the press and the public.
